Further Defeats of Treaty Foes Indicated by Returns of Election

RESULTS PLEASE LONDON

By the Associated Press
 Dublin, June 21.—The probable representation of the various parties in the Parliament chosen in last Friday's election by returns received up to this afternoon, is as follows:

Coalition treaty, 54; coalition republicans, 33; labor, 14; farmers, 5; and independents, 10.

Final returns from the places where the count is still unfinished will, judging by the figures now available, show further defeats of treaty opponents. One noted survivor probably will be Cathal Brugha, chief of Eamon de Valera's lieutenants.

Of the six women members of the Dail Eireann, all anti-treaty, only Mary MacSwiney survived and Mrs. Kate O'Callaghan was returned unopposed. Mrs. Pearse, whose son was executed for their part in the Easter Week rebellion, was defeated in County Dublin. Seamus Robinson, one of the leaders of the army dissidents, lost in Waterford.

Conspicuous among the defeats was that of Erskine Childers in Kildare. He received only 572 votes, fewer than any other candidate. His pro-treaty colleague received more than 9000 first preferences.

London, June 21.—(By A. P.)—The striking results of the Irish elections as far as announced are welcomed here with enthusiasm, coupled with encouragement for the "common sense" of the Irish people, whose verdict is regarded as greatly strengthening the position of the Anglo-Irish treaty and the new constitution.

It is recognized, however, that rejection of the extremists at the polls has not removed all the difficulties of the situation. The labor vote, which is generally remarked as one of the most notable features of the polling, is claimed for the treaty side, but it is declared by some observers that the Irish Labor Party is far more laborite than treatyite, and its future attitude in reference to the country's politics is unknown.

Another serious problem is the attitude of the army. The reported separation of Rory O'Connor's section from the regular Irish Republican army is regarded here as a bad omen for future peace.

having saw people getting a single before but never having one myself. With he did, lighting a long thing like a skinlike candle and making me smell like a chicken when you hear its feathers off but not giving me any other sensation, and pop wasn't down yet and the barber sed. How about a little shampoo? Being another thing I never had from experience, and I sed. All rite. And he gave me such a fierce one you mite of that he had a grudge against me, and after that he put some tonic on my bed and started to massage my face on account of me saying All rite each time, and he was still massaging it when pop came in, saying to the barber, What are you doing to him?

He sed he wanted a massage, sed the barber, and pop sed. The dove he did, he must be crazy, and the barber sed. Well he sed he wanted it, heers the check. And he rote on a little piece of paper and handed it to pop and pop sed, 2 dollars and 50 cents, wat is this, a jonk? and the barber sed, Certenly not, he had a haircut, a singe, a shampoo, tonic and a massage.

Not to speak of what he going to get when he gets home, sed pop. Wich I did.

In every man's mind there is the hope that at some stage of his career he will own a Cadillac.

He ardently desires this one car because he knows it is conceded the world over to be the acme of automotive perfection and enjoyment.

He contemplates the Cadillac as a possession that will reflect his own tastes and standards, be the outward sign of his success and position in life.

He looks forward to its ownership as a form of self-expression, whereby, in the last analysis, he may reveal his innate human love of fine and beautiful things.

In this practically universal admiration and aspiration for the Cadillac there is involved a responsibility which might well cause any manufacturer serious reflection.

We pledge ourselves to uphold rigidly the standards of the Cadillac, that it may be always worthy of the tribute paid it by these future Cadillac owners.

MAN ON STRANDED SHIP IS FOUND EATING GRASS

Unable to Tell Where He Came From—Gives Address as the Sea

New Bedford, Mass., June 21.—(By A. P.)—A thirty-foot schooner, battered and mastless, was discovered yesterday ashore on West Island, in the outer harbor here. On board the bulk was Osmond Erickson, who said his address was the sea. When Edward Egbert, a summer resident, found the wreck Erickson, he said, was eating grass.

Erickson, who was suffering from starvation, was unable to tell where the vessel had come from. He was brought to this city and held until an investigation could be made. According to the police his memory was impaired by the privations he had undergone.

The schooner, the name of which could not be determined, carried a crudely arranged jury mast to replace two masts that had apparently been carried away by a storm. This mast was about six feet high and pieces of old clothing had been used for sails. The hull had been mended in several places with bits of zinc and tin.

Fire Causes $100,000 Damage to University of California

Berkeley, Calif., June 21.—(By A. P.)—Hearst Hall and Hearst Hall Annex were destroyed and the pathology building of the University of California was damaged in a campus fire, with estimated loss of $100,000, last night.

The university infirmary was threatened by the flames and its patients were removed, but the building was not reached by the fire. The origin of the fire was undetermined.

Hearst Hall, a large frame structure, was the gift to the university women of Mrs. Phoebe Apperson Hearst, mother of William Randolph Hearst, the publisher.

German Passport and Jewelry Are Taken From Naircus, Docked Here

A German passport, valuable papers, clothing and jewelry were stolen from the stateroom of Richard Siepas, captain of the steamship Naircus at Pier 72 last night by a thief who gained entrance while the commander was in another part of the ship.

Theft of the private papers leads the police to believe that the thief had a more serious purpose than mere robbery.

The Naircus arrived here a few days ago from Greece.

Little Benny's Note Book

By Lee Page

Yesterday I had to go down to pop's office so he could take me to get a new pair of shoes on account of my new pair looking like a old pair already, the first thing pop sed when he saw me being, Wat kind of a hat of hair is that to come down town with? You look more like a mop than a son of mine, how many years has it bin sints you had it cut last? he sed.

Not so very long, I sed, and pop sed, Well go down stairs on the first floor and you'll find a barber shop, tell the barber to cut your hair and tell him I'll pay when I come down in about 20 minits.

Yes sir, I sed. And I went down and 3 barbers was shaving 3 men and one was standing next to his chair waiting for somebody to get in it. Wich I did, saying, Mr. Potts says to cut my hair and he'll pay you wen he comes down.

With pleasure, sed the barber. Being a kind of a fat barber needing a hair cut himself, and he cut my hair and pop hedent came down yet and the barber sed, How about a little singe? All rite, I sed, account of me
